

Dear Sir,

I very aware that Australia has a long history of discrimination.

I do not believe that some "legislation" will eradicate this attitude that pervades our society. [I have great difficulty accepting that Islamics do, or will, honestly accept any anti-discrimination concepts your team may have]

But I am very fearful that I am about be further discriminated against, by proposals to amend legislation that will punish me, for pointing out that some "lifestyles" and "sexual preferences" have serious health and cultural "problems".

This Nation already has much legislation that is crippling the ability to stand on our own. Less and less are personal business, community and cultural decisions able to be made without crippling penalties and fees on one hand, and outrageous "grants" on the other, that prevent the true cost of an activity, or allow the true reward. This goes for those activities that are horrendously expensive, both in their implementation and the resulting consequences, and the contrary - the simple benefits and rewards that are enjoyed by doing it yourself or with volunteer co-operation of others. [I personally would love to fund many activities that I believe would be of fantastic benefit to our community - but am happy to persuade privately, others to join with me - into entering into law abiding ventures that accept the private risk/reward of doing so.]

The Christian God rewards those who voluntarily honour Him - His society is fully capable of running on 10% - distributed voluntarily according to a pattern in His Life Reference Manual - He rewards according to His externally established Legislative process. We all will one day meet Him to find out how we have done. Our parliaments call upon Him each session that He may guide them [you] in their [your] deliberations. The prayer and hope is that the desire of our founding fathers of this Nation may be listened to - and that you consult this "Life Reference Manual" and It's Author before you act.

Yours Sincerely

Phillip Ellery
