

Dear Committee Members,

Australia does not need sexuality and gender identity anti-discrimination laws. We already have far too many laws.

These proposed laws will remove true freedom of choice and impact adversely on people of faith. It has been evident already how such laws impact ordinary citizens who live according to the code of the Bible both here and overseas.

Australia has always proudly presented itself as a land of the free and many have sought this land because of it.

Imposing laws as those proposed will create a state of tyranny and kill the land of the free.

Yours sincerely,

Mrs Lien van der Velden
