Dear Sir,

I am requesting that no further Anti-Discrimination Laws be extended especially based on gender and sexuality. I feel this quite unnecessary and a further restriction on our freedom of choice.

I see no reason to put these and other things into Law.

Some of these discrimination laws have caused major problems and forced certain situations that are not acceptable. Some Christian groups are finding they are discriminated against because they may say 'no' to a request. Where is their freedom?

More Anti-Discrimination Laws will cause more problems and take away freedom just because you don't agree with something.

Let's keep Australia free to choose.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Heather Jordan
