

To whom it may concern:

I write to voice my concerns over suggested changes to Australia's national Anti-Discrimination Laws including the adding of new Gender Identity and Sexuality Anti-discrimination laws.

I desire that no new laws be enacted giving rights to one group that limit or impede the rights of others, including, but not limited to freedom of religion.

I am concerned by such laws in Victoria that have negatively impacted religious groups and organisations, including the CYC Philip Island Campsite, after the legal action taken by Wayout.

Any such Human rights must protect those rights that have been at play since the earliest human history.

Yours sincerely,

Jason Young
