

Dear Sir,

I strongly object to your assumption that my personal details are up for sale. I entrusted the Australian Government with my personal details, so that they would use them discreetly.

I do not wish for my private details that I have provided to the Australian Government to be shared with anyone else apart from the 20 or so agencies that they are currently shared with.

The sharing of trusting Australian citizens private information is profoundly wrong, and can only lead to a further breaking down of the security of the state and country and ensure more terrorist type activity.

Sincerely,

J
