

I am deeply concerned that any information retained in metadata could be accessed by people or organisations outside of the legal system. I worry that this information is highly sensitive and if access is granted without the users knowledge it could lead to problems for the users personal privacy.

Please make sure that only people who have been charged with serious offences including terrorism and cyber crime are able to have their data monitored.

Thanks for reading my submission.

Kirsteen