

Please reconsider this disastrous change to a legislation that already oversteps the line between security and civil liberty.

If the collected data is released in order to further corporate interests it will undoubtedly undermine the trust of the public in future initiatives in all sectors of government.

I have many concerns about how corporations and governments will slowly be able to increase their ability to abuse this power once the thin end of the wedge is in place.