

No. This is a slippery slope if concessions, amendments and exceptions are already being made.

This kind of behaviour, released just before Xmas to a distracted audience, further erodes the faith of the public in the motivations and intentions of the Australian government.